

Maximizer

What are you good at? What flows so naturally for you that when you do it, it's like riding a bike down a big hill...you just hang on and enjoy the breeze? When you play to your God given talents, you do things effortlessly that others around you find hard or unexciting. When you can put yourself in a situation to focus on those things, you excel and can take yourself to great places.

Here is a little history on how I started understanding my strengths:

For as long as I can remember, I was focused on making money and achievement. It started out small...odd jobs and mini business endeavors such as lemonade stands, buying and selling comic books, pumping gas, cleaning out barns, washing dishes, and painting houses. I even made clown shoes! (get the scoop on this in a future blog)
