

How Clear Are Your Decisions?

I have tried many times to write a blog on bias in the decision making process, but other current events pushed the issue to the back burner. How we see the world is crucial to how and why we make decisions. Ultimately, our success in business and in everyday life is guided by how we perceive the world and how that affects our decisions.

Back in my investment days, I discovered a CIA report called the "Psychology of Intelligence Analysis."